Approximately 1.3 million women and 835,000 men are physically assaulted by an intimate partner every year in the United States. Studies also suggest as many as 30% of teenagers are also being physically assaulted in some way. This training is designed to increase the knowledge of violence (physical, verbal, sexual, coercive, and controlling) perpetrated against the women, men, adults, and teens we may be serving in our Title X Family Planning Clinics. Program faculty will focus on domestic violence and teen dating violence, as well as include signs to look for and counseling techniques used to determine if someone is in a violent or abusive relationship.
